Our Compliance and EH&S Management System Services are designed to assist with EH&S regulatory compliance, strategic planning, and developing and implementing EH&S management programs and systems. We can assist with individual tasks as well as develop programs and systems to maintain continued compliance and sustain ongoing improvements toward specific goals. Compliance services include: permitting and licensing, regulatory reporting, emergency planning/contingency plans, managing hazardous materials, pollution prevention planning, training, and auditing. CAPACCIO can also provide on-site assistance to meet your EMS/HSMS/EH&S planning, development and implementation needs at the frequency you desire.

Our Engineering and Design Services provide technical solutions to meet all of your needs. From industrial process modifications to water/wastewater/groundwater treatment and conservation; air pollution control system evaluation and design; and soil pollution prevention, control and remediation systems; we design cost effective, environmentally sustainable solutions because our engineers come from industry and understand the needs and concerns of the end users.

Our Health, Safety and Industrial Hygiene Services are designed to assist organizations in maintaining regulatory compliance, developing recordkeeping and documentation systems, organizing and managing health and safety programs, and helping protect their most valuable asset...their employees!

CAPACCIO continually innovates. Through our EH&S Web-Based Applications and Tools, we will bring your organization to the next level. Our computer-based EH&S training and chemical tracking software will improve your effectiveness and efficiency, and our latest development, the EHS-Dashboard™, is an EH&S data management system which will greatly improve our clients' ability to achieve their goals by spending less time on data collection, verification, and analysis, and more time implementing their EH&S programs.

Our Sustainability Services are designed to address your organization's sustainability challenges and opportunities. Whether you are just beginning to investigate how sustainability fits into your organization, or if you already have mature programs in place, our services can bring significant value to your organization.
